esprit orchestra 96 97

Alex Pauk music director and conductor

Esprit Orchestra's 1996/97 season has two complementary dimensions: A three-concert subscription series and an Esprit Orchestra Festival.

MUSIC DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

Opening Esprit's festival, superstar Canadian tenor Richard Margison takes on new roles singing three contemporary works with the orchestra. Celebrating ten years of collaboration, Rhombus Media and Esprit have developed a special multi-media festival concert blending filmed performances with those live from the stage. On the same evening, Esprit pays tribute to R. Murray Schafer by performing two of his works, including The Falcon's Trumpet which generated enormous excitement and critical acclaim when we premiered it last season. The Esprit Orchestra Festival is the finale of a week-long Toward a Living Art programme in student education.

In addition to the festival and subscription series, Esprit performs in the ONSTAGE series at the Glenn Gould Studio on November 25th with world-renowned solo clarinetist Richard Stoltzman as guest artist.

This season Esprit gives sharper focus to a selection of Canadian composers by performing at least two of each composer's works. In Colin McPhee's case, Esprit performs four works in-concert then records them in the studio for our fourth CBC Records' SM5000 compact disc, devoted exclusively to his music. Esprit's focus on this musical innovator extends to appearances in a new Rhombus film being developed exploring Colin McPhee's music.

Esprit's commitment to commissioning and premiering new Canadian music is undiminished and, through our usual brand of innovative programming, another season is in store for adventurous listeners. Please join us for our fourteenth exciting season.

portals of intent

This season-opener is charged with the energy and excitement of being broadcast live-to-air across Canada on CBC Stereo's Two New Hours.

The electric sonorities of Chris Paul Harman's Iridescence set the pace for a concert which delves into comparisons between sorcery and music (Alex Pauk's Portals of Intent); explores the cultural resonances of Sergio Barroso's Cuban heritage (Concerto for Viola and Orchestra); and musically depicts electronic images of earth from space blending transcendently with a dream world incorporating quotations of beautiful music from the past, in Alexina Louie's tribute to the musical genius Glenn Gould.

Richard Margison - new roles

guest artists

RICHARD MARGISON (Canada), tenor

ELIZABETH TURNBULL (Canada), mezzo-soprano

JOHN REA (Canada)

Alma & Oskar

for tenor, mezzo-soprano and orchestra

1994 (orchestrated 1996) World Premiere (orchestral version)

This melodrama (from beyond the grave) is a musical account of the love affair between Alma Schindler-Mahler and the visual artist and early Expressionist Oskar Kokoshka. As such, it alludes to music of the period and deals with memory, misunderstanding and the fruits of love.

WITOLD LUTOSLAWSKI (Poland)

Paroles tissées (Woven Words)

for tenor, strings, harp, piano and percussion, 1965

The music of Lutoslawski's Paroles tissées extends beyond the limits of the surrealistic "woven words" of Jean-François Chabrun's poem of the same name, reflecting Debussy's comment: "The music begins where the words end."

ALEX PAUK (Canada)

new work

for tenor and orchestra with viola obbligato, 1996

World Premiere

Richard Margison wanted to premiere a new Canadian piece on this concert and consequently - together with his wife Valerie Kuinka, a violist with Esprit Orchestra - asked Esprit's Music Director to compose a piece in two versions that they could perform together, either with orchestra or piano accompaniment.

JOSÉ EVANGELISTA (Canada)

Symphonie minute

for orchestra, 1994

- i. Envol
- ii. Mélopée
- iii. Combat
- iv. Presto chromatique

A symphony in miniature form, this work of rapid tempi and nervous, light character, forgoes the grand proportions and expressions of traditional symphonic repertoire to captivate the ear through textures and gestures unique to each of its four contrasting movements.

COLIN MCPHEE (Canada)

Symphony No. 2 (Pastorale), 1957

- i. Moderato misterioso
- ii. Elegy
- iii. Molto energico

Colin McPhee's symphony recalls the music of Bali as through a scrim - distant, hazy, seductively mysterious. Lyrical, and based on pentatonic scale forms, this work reverberates with the composer's nostalgic associations and cross-references to his immersion in the music and culture of that paradisaical island.

september songs: the music of Kurt Weill

a film by Rhombus Media Inc., directed by Larry Weinstein (35 mm format screening)

September Songs, produced in 1994 by Canada's Rhombus Media, features many of Kurt Weill's most-remembered songs as performed by some of today's leading rock, pop, jazz, classical and underground artists - including Elvis Costello, Teresa Stratas, PJ Harvey and Lou Reed. The film is a brilliant collage of these rare performances and images of the turbulent times in which Weill lived and worked.

The evening includes a pre-screening talk by Rhombus producer / director Larry Weinstein. The screening of September Songs helps celebrate ten years of collaboration between Esprit and this world-renowned Canadian film maker.

***Saturday morning and afternoon events - free to the general public - are also planned. For further information contact Esprit at (416) 599-7880.

orchestral - theatre orchestral - film

guest artist

STUART LAUGHTON (Canada), trumpet

R. MURRAY SCHAFER (Canada)

Cortège, 1977

Cortège takes the form of a surreal, dream-like, ceremonial procession with the orchestral players - in slow motion and pantomime - moving through the concert hall guided by the conductor who takes on the roles of magician and choreographer. The counterpoint between sound and gesture in Cortège sets up startling new relationships amongst the players and between the orchestra and audience.

R. MURRAY SCHAFER (Canada)

The Falcon's Trumpet

for trumpet and orchestra, 1995

R. Murray Schafer has declared that his greatest interest lies in musical forms not constrained by the walls of a concert hall. The forest, the garden, an unusual architectural setting - these are locales which stimulate and inspire the composer. The Falcon's Trumpet orchestrally re-creates the sense of an outdoor environment and imbues the trumpet solo with the majesty of a falcon in soaring flight.

In celebrating ten years of collaboration, Esprit and Rhombus Media have, for this concert, created a unique blend of filmed and live performances highlighting favourite musical and film excerpts selected by director Larry Weinstein and conductor Alex Pauk. This event not only reflects on past accomplishments but sets the stage for new collaborations, beginning soon with the production of a film devoted to the life and music of Colin McPhee.

performance excerpts from:

TORU TAKEMITSU (Japan)

Toward the Sea II, 1981

IANNIS XENAKIS (Greece)

midwinter songs

This is the third time that the Elmer Iseler Singers have joined Esprit in concert. Our collaboration is seasonally timed to give Morton Lauridson's Midwinter Songs special relevance. Along with the Canadian premiere of José Evangelista's Noche oscura (Dark Night) the concert features two works the choir and orchestra have performed together previously - John Rea's Litaneia and Alexina Louie's Love Songs for a Small Planet based, respectively, on a text by Aristophanes and the poetry of indigenous peoples from around the world.

transitions - Colin McPhee and beyond

Transitions is in effect Esprit's "CD Concert IV," featuring three Colin McPhee works that Esprit will later record for an all-McPhee CBC SM5000 compact disc. The composer's love of Balinese culture and music is reflected in each of these pieces. McPhee's music creates, with assurance and imagination, an exotic realm profoundly influenced by Indonesian gamelan music - amongst the most rhythmically exciting and colourful percussion music ever created.

The programme also highlights an Esprit-commissioned work receiving its world premiere. The piece is by Canada's Bob Becker - percussionist, composer and member of Nexus. Becker's work explores the perceptual phenomena that occur when one strong cultural expression encounters another. In this case, among other things, the composer seeks to extract a functional harmonic system (Western) from a purely melodic source - specifically the ragas of Hindustani (North Indian) classical music.

composers

COLIN MCPHEE (Canada)

Concerto for Wind Orchestra, 1960

COLIN MCPHEE (Canada)

ESPRIT ORCHESTRA PROFILE

Recipient of the 1995 Jean A. Chalmers National Music Award for outstanding contribution to musical creativity, Esprit is Canada's only full-size orchestra uniquely committed to commissioning and performing contemporary orchestral music by Canadian composers. Since 1983 Esprit has provided composers with the opportunity to write music for full orchestra and hear that music played by a professional orchestra comprised of musicians devoted to, and uniquely trained in, the performance of new music.

Over the past thirteen years, Esprit has performed over 100 works by composers from across Canada, as well as 70 works by composers from around the world. It has performed the world premieres of 55 brand new Canadian works - 44 of which were Esprit commissions.

Among the many outstanding Canadian composers who have written music for Esprit are Omar Daniel, José Evangelista, Harry Freedman, John Oswald, John Rea, R. Murray Schafer and Harry Somers.

Some of the leading soloists and groups that have appeared with Esprit are flutist Robert Aitken, violinist Martin Beaver, mezzo-soprano Maureen Forrester, violist Rivka Golani, cellist Desmond Hoebig, the percussion ensemble Nexus and pianist Jon Kimura Parker.

In addition to the music it has recorded for films by the internationally-renowned Rhombus Media Inc., Esprit has released 3 compact discs on CBC Record's SM5000 label, the most recent - Music for Heaven and Earth - receiving a five-star rating from BBC Music Magazine.

For more information about Esprit Orchestra, please call (416) 599-7880.
